

FORUM LEGENDS

in Wall of Fame

Overview Content People Subspaces

Actions

Welcome!

Please take a moment to admire and congratulate this dedicated group of people from your community. These are this year's top forum contributors who have devoted so much of their time to helping our customers be successful. From answering questions, activating communities to get engaged on the forums, screenshots, visuals, and new ideas, these Forum Legends go above and beyond! Feel free to follow them or click on their names to find out more & check out the monthly top list on our Wall of Fame. We want to recognize and applaud them and show our appreciation for their hard work. We could not do this without them. Thank you!

Kglad

kglad

About me: I have a background in mathematics (PhD, Purdue) and medicine (MD, Yale) and I've created hundreds of Flash, AS3 and mobile applications for clients worldwide. My full-time occupation is in medicine (I'm a pediatrician in So. Cal), but I also have two part-time jobs (programming and medical expert). In addition, I tend fruit trees and vegetable, succulent and bee-friendly flower gardens, one cat and a wife. All three step-sons are adults and on their own (for the most part).

Monika Gause

Monika Gause

About me: I'm from Hamburg, Germany where I still live. Studied graphic design at Institute of Design/Hamburg and became a freelance graphic designer: Writing books & magazine articles & tutorials. Hobbies/interests: Bauhaus artists, undergrounds & railroads & public transport systems, cinema, knitting. Fun Fact: I don't think I'd ever need to write more than 3 consecutive sentences again after graduating from college.

John Fritz II

John Fritz II

About me: I've been a Graphic Designer on and off for just about 20 years now and have been in some form of Website Development since Netscape Navigator was "the good one". I've dabbled in Photography, Illustration and Video Production, but have probably forgotten more than I remember about any of them. I enjoy long walks on the beach, candlelit dinners, holding hands, etc, wait, wrong profile. I'm a bit of a beer snob and enjoy just about any craft beer you set in front of me, except IPAs (I've never met one I liked anyway). I spend a good portion of my home-time in front of a large charcoal grill/smoker and tossing a ball around the yard with my son during the handful of warm months we get in MN. Otherwise we generally huddle in the darkness with his mom for warmth, under a large number of blankets, hoping the sun will come back again.

Jeff Wright

Jeff Wright

About me: I grew up in Los Angeles amid the counter-culture/sexual revolution. When I attended school, personal computing and the internet didn't exist. Although I trained and worked briefly as an x-ray technologist, my deeper interests laid elsewhere. So I moved to the San Francisco Bay Area and hung out at Stanford University. Well actually the campus coffee shop and pitball arcade where I met like-minded people who enjoyed games & intellectually stimulating conversation. Eventually I landed in a sales & marketing office where I met my future husband, a writer and ultimate business partner. After a 13 year career in sales, I switched hats and worked as an administrator in the behavioral healthcare sector for 10 years. Today, I'm co-owner of a small business, a freelance web developer and print graphic designer - skills acquired mainly from experience rather than any formal training. I live in Great Valley, home of the Reagan Presidential Library, with my husband of 13 years and our cat Reggie, as well as a 50 lb outdoor raccoon whom we call Polo. Hobbies/interests: Art, science, music, film/video, nature, photography, sewing, knitting, crocheting, cooking, hiking, golfing, fine wines and protecting the integrity of non-GMO and heirloom seeds. Fun Fact: I'm hooked on Candy Crush & Soda Crush Saga. Please send me some lives.

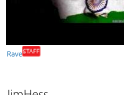

Mylenium

Mylenium

About me: Retired from IBM Research a dozen years ago use Photoshop to keep my mind active. I'm enjoying retirement and my five grandchildren. It's easier being a grandparent than a parent. In fact it's a pleasure.

Rave

Rave

JimHess

JimHess

John T Smith

John T Smith

About me: I started with Premiere 6 and a bundled Pinnacle DV500 card when I bought a pre-built Altaware Pentium 3 computer January 2002. I now build my own, see reply #6 in <https://forums.adobe.com/message/6536849> for my latest. After asking a LOT of questions, I was able to start giving back by sharing what I've learned with other Premiere users, now Premiere Pro I also participate in a few other forums, answering questions when I either know the answer myself or when I can share a saved link leading to a relevant discussion. I'm now retired, and spend some of my free time writing the rest of my 'free' time belongs to my wife's hobby Do It... or so she thinks! plus working on her online store. My Amazon Author's Page <http://www.amazon.com/John-Thomas-Smith/vp/B0019PSU0W>

Ann Bens

Ann Bens

About me: I love cats, not surprising. I have been a veterinary nurse for nearly 30 years and my avatar is that of one of our cats. Run a Dutch Adobe Video forum. My husband and I like to travel in the world. I never go without a photo and video camera. That is where Premiere Pro comes in. Love editing, it's a hobby that has gone way out of hand.

Jacob Bugge

Jacob Bugge

About me: Being a typical GenMill, I combined careers as a software engineer (research, college professor) and as a musician (classical flute, chamber music, concerts and flute teaching). My real passion is learning and teaching, not assuming that I discovered Adobe Captivate as an all-round tool to create engaging learning assets to my students. In college I was responsible for a lot of technical subjects (construction), project management and integration of ICT in building companies. Since 2009 I got involved in the Advisory board for Captivate, was invited by Adobe Education Leader and Adobe Community Professional. Now I'm a freelance consultant/trainer for advanced Captivate solutions. My blog <http://blog.jacobbugge.com> has become a reference for worldwide Captivate users. I'm around on social media. Hobbies/interests: my third passion (next to learning and music). As a worldwide globetrotter, the only continents missing in my log books are Antarctica and Australia/Oceania. The Sahara and Himalayas are my favorite landscapes, and I'm fascinated by cultures from Tibetans and Dogons!

Nancy Oshea

Nancy Oshea

About me: I grew up in Los Angeles amid the counter-culture/sexual revolution. When I attended school, personal computing and the internet didn't exist. Although I trained and worked briefly as an x-ray technologist, my deeper interests laid elsewhere. So I moved to the San Francisco Bay Area and hung out at Stanford University. Well actually the campus coffee shop and pitball arcade where I met like-minded people who enjoyed games & intellectually stimulating conversation. Eventually I landed in a sales & marketing office where I met my future husband, a writer and ultimate business partner. After a 13 year career in sales, I switched hats and worked as an administrator in the behavioral healthcare sector for 10 years. Today, I'm co-owner of a small business, a freelance web developer and print graphic designer - skills acquired mainly from experience rather than any formal training. I live in Great Valley, home of the Reagan Presidential Library, with my husband of 13 years and our cat Reggie, as well as a 50 lb outdoor raccoon whom we call Polo. Hobbies/interests: Art, science, music, film/video, nature, photography, sewing, knitting, crocheting, cooking, hiking, golfing, fine wines and protecting the integrity of non-GMO and heirloom seeds. Fun Fact: I'm hooked on Candy Crush & Soda Crush Saga. Please send me some lives.

c.pfaffenbichler

c.pfaffenbichler

About me: You know the old saying? Never return a favour, pass it on. - (Quote from all 4 Free Worlds - ..., 2007, Director: Ken Loach, Writer: Paul Laverty)

AT Romano

AT Romano

Rajshree Bhattacharya

Rajshree Bhattacharya

Fun Fact: I am an avid watcher & observer right from dried leaves in the bag to human faces in the crowd. Can almost predict the storyline from the cover of the unreadable Book. I can converse with any age group from 7 to 70 as per the other partner's choice endlessly. An universal food lover: banana, mango, cocoa & frog. I have god's gift to fall asleep anywhere anytime, this power nap helps to rejuvenate. A voracious reader with no discrimination except science fiction.

Bob Levine

Bob Levine

About me: Ah, a legend. I always wanted to be a legend. I guess I can cross that off the bucket list. :)

Lilybiri

Lilybiri

About me: Being a typical GenMill, I combined careers as a software engineer (research, college professor) and as a musician (classical flute, chamber music, concerts and flute teaching). My real passion is learning and teaching, not assuming that I discovered Adobe Captivate as an all-round tool to create engaging learning assets to my students. In college I was responsible for a lot of technical subjects (construction), project management and integration of ICT in building companies. Since 2009 I got involved in the Advisory board for Captivate, was invited by Adobe Education Leader and Adobe Community Professional. Now I'm a freelance consultant/trainer for advanced Captivate solutions. My blog <http://blog.jacobbugge.com> has become a reference for worldwide Captivate users. I'm around on social media. Hobbies/interests: my third passion (next to learning and music). As a worldwide globetrotter, the only continents missing in my log books are Antarctica and Australia/Oceania. The Sahara and Himalayas are my favorite landscapes, and I'm fascinated by cultures from Tibetans and Dogons!

Fun Fact: Hobby in the USA can pronounce my real name, hence the nickname Lilybiri, where Lily is my call name in the family, and Biri the name of my late husband.

Ned Murphy

Ned Murphy

About me: Born and raised in Massachusetts - Associates in Studio Art, Bachelors in Electrical Engineering, Bachelors in Information Systems. Freelance as a web graphic designer and programmer. I live in the middle of nowhere in what I call north of northern New York, where there are probably more cows than people, and there aren't a lot of cows. Fun Fact: Old and boring - I pass time apple herding when the trees are dropping 'em.

Try67

Try67

About me: An Israeli native, I currently live in Europe. I have a Bachelor's Degree in Linguistics and have worked for various companies in the IT field, including a Japanese translation bureau, a large Dutch bank, a Spanish news-dispatching agency and even for Adobe (through a subsidiary) in Technical Support. I am currently a freelance developer, specializing in creating custom made tools for PDF files, written mostly in Java and JavaScript, as well as a large array of other things (Dynamic graphs for web-pages, for example). My commercial URL is (for the moment) Custom made Adobe Scripts. Favorite Drink: Any single-malt whisky, preferably Ardbeg or Lagavulin. Fun Fact: My first programming experience was with Logo language, somewhere in the mid 90s.

pwillener

pwillener

About me: Originally from Switzerland, I came to Tokyo in 1987 to perform a 3 months software installation. Now, almost 30 years later, I am still here and enjoy what Tokyo has to offer in abundance: parks, museums, classical concerts and opera, 300,000 restaurants - I still haven't tried all of them.